The best way to understand the cost of a residential solar project is price per watt. Price per watt is the total cost of the project (including materials and installation with any financial incentives deducted) divided by the total wattage of your solar panels. So, if you have ten 200-watt solar panels, your system size is 2000 watts.

The levelized cost of energy from the photovoltaic plant has been found to be 0.0554 to 0.0745 USD/kWh. The economic analysis of hydrogen production has utilised this electricity cost to determine the production cost of green hydrogen based on solar photovoltaic power.
