Compare this to similarly priced mouse pads or gaming mouse pads, and it is easy to see that you get a lot more bang for your buck with a mouse pad. Lastly, glass skates may seem like a marketing gimmick or a waste of your money, time, and effort if they end up disappointing you by not improving your performance or experience.

Vaydeer includes adhesive rubber feet to mitigate this issue, but they can fall off over time, potentially hindering mouse movement. You might want to attach your own pads or use a stronger glue for better adherence. Another easy to clean hard mouse pad is the 3M Precise Pad. I've used glass mouse pads forever and I'm not replacing my mouse feet all the time. I don't understand this even though it seems universally accepted. Always keep mine clean and I don't use lots of pressure so idk. The two negatives in general tend to be the noise and stopping power, but the razer pad is actually pretty quiet for a glass pad.

It's awesome if there isn't a single spec of dust in the pad or PTFE feet. I tried ceramic feet and glass feet on it, you just can't use them even for 5 seconds, the scratching will torture your ears and feels very uncomfortable. Only PTFE will work. If you want a truly buttery feeling - try ceramic feet on a Sphex V3 on top of a cloth pad.
