A solar water heater was designed, constructed and tested in Akure, South West, Nigeria (Latitude 7.30 o N and Longitude 5.25 o E). A flat plate collector covered with double glazing layers at 20 o angle of tilt to the horizontal was employed. The surface of the collector was darkened to improve its absorption capacity.

Correlations for estimating monthly global solar radiation in Akure Nigeria are proposed. The monthly solar radiation can be predicted within reasonable level of accuracy with average temperature and precipitation based correlations. The correlations presented in this study could be applied to similar locations to Akure.

In Lagos, Nigeria, a solar energy company utilized the data on solar peak sun hours to design a solar system for a remote village. By understanding the daily peak sunlight hours of 5.4, they were able to select ...

The document summarizes a study that designed, constructed, and tested a solar water heater in Akure, Nigeria. Key findings include: - A flat plate collector covered with double glazing and tilted at 20 degrees recorded a maximum hot water temperature of 73°C with ambient temperature of 36°C. Collector efficiency peaked at 92% at 4pm.

Gennex Technologies is a leading solar company in Nigeria and in partnership with the best solar manufacturing companies in the world. As one of the leading pioneers of the Nigeria solar industry, we not only sell and distribute high quality solar products, we also provide comprehensive on-grid/off-grid backup and solar solutions for commercial and residential users.

Downloadable (with restrictions)! In this study, the global solar radiation on horizontal surface in Akure, Nigeria (Latitude 7.25° N and Longitude 5.2° E) using 22-year data (July 1983-June 2005) was analysed. Simple empirical correlations for evaluating the monthly average daily global solar radiation were developed. The calculated monthly clearness index values indicates that ...
